"Signalling at the nanoscale: cAMP compartmentation controls hormonal specificity"

Prof. Manuela Zaccolo
Department of Physiology,
Anatomy and Genetics, Oxford
University.

Manuela Zaccolo graduated in Medicine at the University of Torino and was post-doc in Cambridge, UK. She moved to the University of Padova, and then to the University of Glasgow. Since 2012, she is Professor of Cell Biology at the Department of Physiology, Anatomy and Genetics of Oxford University (UK). Prof. Zaccolo gave major contributions in the field the regulation of intracellular signaling networks, particularly on cyclic nucleotide signaling with a view of applying this knowledge to the development of novel therapeutic strategies.
